NUHS ALLIED HEALTH EXCELLENCE AWARD

This award recognises individuals who have contributed significantly towards NUHS' clinical, research and education missions. Their contributions have significant impact and produced robust outcomes within their profession or Allied Health. They are exemplary role models and develop others around them.

"We want to constantly improve our work for better patient outcomes and we can achieve that through better work processes and strong inter-professional collaborations. I would like the next generation of medical technologists to strive and build on the foundations that has been laid and bring the laboratory to greater heights."

Susan Lim Tsui Tsui

Principal Medical Technologist, Laboratory Medicine
National University Hospital

"I hope to spur nutrition research interest and encourage dietitians to be leaders within their chosen field of dietetics. I thrive on the satisfaction of creating knowledge through research, imparting clinical skills, and seeing patients improve from nutritional therapy. In my specialisation, we care for critically ill patients. Optimising their functionality after discharge is my ultimate goal."

Charles Lew Chin Han

Principal Dietitian, Dietetics and Nutrition
JurongHealth Campus

"I want to empower patients to manage their own conditions and to see them get better. It is also my wish to help my juniors grow and for them to take pride in their work. I want to leave behind a legacy of learning. We can constantly strive to find new ways to do things better and find meaning in the work that we do."

Lynette Goh Mei Lim

Principal Dietitian, Clinical Services (Dietetics)
National University Polyclinics

NUHS ALLIED HEALTH YOUNG ACHIEVER AWARD

This award recognises young Allied Health staff who have demonstrated excellence in their professional fields, shown instances of promising leadership skills, and are exemplary role models for those around them.

"By harnessing technology and automation in the pharmacy, we streamline processes that can enhance safety and efficiency for both our patients and the team. We must have a positive mindset and know that we can make a difference in every patient's life."

Tan Chwee Huat

Senior Principal Pharmacist, Pharmacy
Alexandra Hospital

"There will be tough times at work, but every encounter with my patients and colleagues is a valuable experience. We may not be able to improve every patient's condition, but we can always provide a therapeutic touch to help them feel better. Let us work with a clear purpose and never forget our unique mission of improving patients' lives!"

Emily Guo Yiting

Principal Speech Therapist, Rehabilitation
National University Hospital

"Knowing that what I do makes a difference to patients at the pharmacy motivates me to constantly seek new ways to provide higher and better standards of care. When I am at work, I put in my best and I hope to inspire new pharmacists to be the best they can be, especially for our patients."
